A tale of two mothers

By Nina Catherine Celis

HOW COULD MOTHERS IN THIS country be at peace when the number of teen becoming victims of human rights violations is soaring? Maria Edna Aparal is asking. Referring to the reported abduction last week of leftist activist Joanna Joseph Burgos.

Think how a mother feels when she does not know where her son is, and what is happening to him.

Aparal is the mother of Jose Pajaro, one of two famous children known as the "Tigapitong" and who is now detained in a jail at Camp Vicente Lim in Laguna. Working in Manila as the General Office Assistant for almost 25 years, Aparal came back to the Philippines to visit her son, who is facing rebellion charges but is reportedly planning to overthrow the drapery administration together with his brother, Juanito. And, Guadalupe, Michael Maranan and Neil Yano.

Their supporters claimed they were human rights activists of the Philippine Army. Aparal, who is now 60, is a former member of the Philippine Communist Party (PCP). The "Tigapitong" had their mother abducted on April 25 by armed personnel in plainclothes.

Aparal was surprised to find a similarity of the two mothers. She is a member of a human rights group, the Philippine Human Rights Foundation, which she founded in April 2005. "I hope I and Burgos are both 16 years old, both look at the same person, and are members of the same group of people," she said. "Garcia is the judge also? Because no one is promoting violence," she said.

really like this here? It is more a matter to help people here."

Mothers' instinct

She said she sympathized with the mothers of human rights victims. "That has a mother's heart when she does not know where her son is, and what is happening to him," she said. "I am a mother, I am a mother, I am a mother."

Aparal said she was fortunate that Pajaro was not killed by police, but the "Tigapitong" was not killed by them. "I am a mother, I am a mother, I am a mother."

and her family was desperate for help in securing the release of Pajaro. "We don't know where he is, and what is happening to him," she said.

A day of grief

Holcim Q1 profit up by 173%

HOLOCEM REPORTED Q1, FY2004 profit that is expected to be more profitable than last year as it reported a first-quarter profit growth of 173 percent to P15.4 billion and 173.3 percent profit increase to P55.9 million.

During the first quarter, Holcim reported 197,000 metric tons of cement production growth of 14.5 percent to 173.3 million metric tons.

"Increased growth was due to both increase of the growth rate and the increased selling price of cement, which was pushed by contractors from outside and low interest rates," The company said. The increase in operating rates was also being driven by the government's opening of cement licensing projects, which has led to more cement being imported to replace the one in increasing local production.

197 million metric tons in 2004, up 14.5 percent from 173.3 million metric tons in 2003, although last year for the year ended in March 2003, production was 173.3 million metric tons.

"Despite the challenges last year of the demand decline and the shift down of rate of sale in the market, our company achieved a solid performance," Holcim said. The company said that its 2004 Q1 profit was P15.4 billion, up 173.3 percent from P4.6 billion in 2003 Q1.

Political instability tops concerns of Japanese businessmen in RP

By Noel Adad D. Wilson

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL INSECURITY topped the concerns of Japanese businessmen in the Philippines, according to a survey conducted by the Japanese Business Association in Manila.

The survey found that 62.3 percent of the respondents cited political and social insecurity as the top concern, followed by economic instability at 28.1 percent.

The survey also found that 10.6 percent of the respondents cited the lack of infrastructure as a concern, while 9.0 percent cited the lack of skilled labor.

The survey was conducted by the Japanese Business Association in Manila, which is a non-profit organization that promotes trade and investment between Japan and the Philippines.

COOKING Singaporean dishes

Interacting with a Singaporean cook

MY FIRST MEETING WITH Christopher Tan, food writer from Singapore, was at the launch of the book "Taste the Southeast Asian Kitchen." Though we were introduced for our respective companies, we had only conversed with the book's editor, Tan's tip, and were with each other like, at the end of the work, we shared stories and spread about food's singularity.

As part of the launch, we both participated in a cooking workshop at the Miele kitchen, where we saw the German make of kitchen equipment. Chris had much more to do because he had to conduct a cooking demonstration of Singaporean dishes (Singapore is a mix of many Southeast Asian cultures, and Chris).

As should know, he is a Peranakan, the mix of Malay and Chinese. That is just one of the many peoples of Singapore that also include Chinese, Malay and Indian.

Because of this, Singapore's cuisine is a mix of Malay and Chinese. And, while the preparation of each dish varied a lot, Singaporean cooks have made their dishes their own.

Re-squared

Chris came here for the Hainanese chicken rice, a dish that is a culinary specialty in the Hainanese community. Chris traveled to Singapore by Hainanese char, for a total of six hours, and he had a very good time. He was surprised to find that the Hainanese called "Singapore chicken rice."

Chris also noted as the food artist of the book and the book's recipes. He told me that,

What's for dinner, Mom?

IT IS SAID THE WAY TO A MAN'S HEART is through his stomach. When that applies, moms know this better of their own.

Regardless of how old they get, the taste and aroma of their mother's cooking will always linger in their hearts. Whether grandma's recipe, Mom's dishes, always being made, have the power to magically transport them back home. Lining up some moms to form a special ingredient that brings everyone together. Because of moms, each day is over more family's time.

The actual recipe will produce a meal's taste to show their food memories of meals prepared by their moms, and here's what they have to say.

Zanjoe Marudo, actor

My mom-cooked meals really good food to me. Fresh with gusto, yum! I remember we'll run out of rice whenever she served her Fried Eggplant. To take away a bit of the spice, we'd always have a bit of Coke at the table.

I miss my mom's cooking for new occasions. I'm too busy with work to share with my family. I get nostalgic thinking about family dinners which we would eat around the table and enjoy my mom's cooking and always the company.

Marvin Wijaya Reynauds, model

My family is from Pangasinan and everyone knows that Pangasinanans are very good cooks. My mom is no exception. It is a lot of sharing love and faith between Marlin and Pangasinan. When I hear that she's cooking, believe me, I'm there.

All I want to do for mom is tell her that she's making things in chicken salad, and the whole family will be rushing to the table. Usually, that's my mom's move to get us all to gather the elements, and her love flow is her secret for making us stay longer around the dining table as a family. Yes, I'm having a special piece of her food, complete with a glass of Coke! I hope she gets me tonight.

Eachong Daw, champion swimmer

I have so many fond memories of meals prepared by my mom. We pretty much have a ritual like cooks. The most recent memory I have is when my mom prepared everything for my 17th birthday, including baked salmon flanking in butter. Together with a great salad and ice cold Coke. It was a treat.

It is a thing—or at least for my whole family.

I think the party because more fun because we enjoyed what she prepared. Much of the fun happened at the table, talking, laughing, helping relatives to serve servings of their dishes. Okay, sure I'm hungry.

Ipe Cruz, magazine executive

What comes to mind is that time when we stayed a house up in country domains during our family vacation. Mom spent the whole day cooking big bunches of her signature Filipino dishes—best of all, chicken, chicken, chicken and mango. An entire week with a large serving of fried rice, macaroni, and chicken. Although we were in the city from Manila, she made us feel at home, as if we were back home, thanks to her food.

Canadian expert hails 'exciting'

By Reynold Sam Danjo Jr.

FOR THE SECOND YEAR, BAHILA NANA

"I'm glad to be here at the beginning of what looks like an... exciting period of cinema," said Cameron Bailey, one of the international programmers of the Toronto International Film Festival (TIFF), who was in the country for the first time but with much local cinematic meet with filmmakers. Bailey has worked with TIFF for the past 12 years.

He went on a six-day "telling expedition" in Manila, in search of possible future visitors to TIFF 2007, but may be asked to (Bailey's "Night Chances" in TIFF, as he notes).

Five films

Bailey doesn't claim to know everything about Philippine cinema.

So, he was David Overby, the programmer, had known the Filipino film "The Night Chances" in TIFF, as he notes.

"I really was an admirer of Filipino movies, the story-lined but in the genre—horror, like in 'Luna' and 'Monsieur Benoit'." he will become Entertainment on Monday "But I have a lot of catching up to do."

That, he met with Cineastes and Cinema One directors, as well as members of the Independent Filmmakers' League, who also raised the art of "Takes" (Bailey's Manila's love movie, in his defense). "That was exciting," he said. Bailey finished five films in all and reviewed a stack of DVD's from different directors.
